Please note that prices and availability may be subject to change

A qualified and experienced teacher and Forest School leader will attend all sessions. If additional Forest School staff are required for larger groups or where groups have particular needs, their time will be charged depending on the required levels of training. With sufficient notice we can provide qualified teachers, Forest School leaders or suitably experienced assistants. All staff attending will have current DBS certificates and experience working with young people.

Programmes can be tailored to the specific needs of the groups and individuals. Sessions can involve “traditional” Forest School activities including exploration, discovery, creativity, cooking and developing specific skills. Sessions can be nature based, discovering nature on the site, exploring habitats and working to improve conditions by carrying out conservation and habitat improvement activities. Activities can also be planned to develop work related skills, carrying out physical work, clearing areas, building structures and carrying out site maintenance if this would be considered to be beneficial for the individuals. As an experienced teacher of Biology and Environmental Science, Stuart is also able to offer fieldwork activities that form important parts of GCSE and A-level Science courses.
